

Macfarlanes is a leading city law firm based in London. It is recognised for the quality of its work, not just in dealing with the full range of corporate and commercial matters, but also in advising clients on their private affairs.

Macfarlanes had a requirement to transform a first floor library space into a executive management suite for the Managing and Senior Partners of the firm and their teams. The project would involve the construction of cellular offices to accommodate fee earning solicitors and to make good the surrounding space.

The project presented Opus 4 with a number of challenges. The manufacturers of the original furniture and sliding door partitioning system were no longer in business and it was imperative that the new office suite blended in with the existing office space on the floor. After extensive research, Opus managed to find and vet two manufacturers who were equal to the task.

The project was completed on time and to the satisfaction of the client.
