

Jtech R&P Services install Lightweight Window Security

Jtech Services have recently completed the installation of some lightweight door & window protectors at a community centre in the Midlands.

The adjacent football pitches meant that there was a constant danger of a stray, mis-kicked football (yes, we've all done it!) breaking the windows, but at the same time the occupants indoors didn't want to feel barred in, and so a larger aperture mesh was used to provide the best solution for both situations.

The security panels were hinged so that window maintenance and cleaning could easily take place by authorised personnel.

Because of the detailed pre-manufacture measure, installation was quite straightforward and completed within the agreed timeframe.

Barriers and railings are an integral part of any industrial safety & security policy and Jtech R&P Services offer a wide range of products that can suit practically any situation.
