Course title	“People Moving People” (Moving & Handling) Train the Trainer
Sectors	Special education, health and social care
Who should attend	This course is for anyone wishing to deliver up to date moving and handling training and conduct and record formal manual handling risk assessments.

Course Details:

DURATION : 4 days

COURSE SIZE : Maximum number of participants is 10

Course Aim:

- To provide competent manual handling instructors for people working in sectors that require moving and handling instructors to be at best practice standard as at 2023.
- To reduce risk of injury to staff and people being handled
- To avoid prosecution and litigation.

This course has been designed with the core aim of creating a confident, motivated, professionally qualified manual handling instructor for health, social care or education settings.

Course Introduction:

This course, originally launched in 1997 and regularly updated has been designed to ensure you have a team member who can deliver up to date moving and handling training and risk assessment so that, risks are reduced, to both employees and those being moved thereby mitigating your risk to claims and litigation.

The course centres on improving people handling by combining the use of criterion based risk assessment with current best practice handling techniques and of new handling aids designed to reduce risk. The content is in line with best practice as defined in the Guide to Handling People 6th edition. This course stimulates an ideal climate for change to attitudes, practices and motivation in the work place. Participants discover ways to inspire their trainees to move and handle people in a manner that requires far less physical effort, affords greater dignity and hugely improves confidence in a range of settings.

If staff do not have training experience don't worry as they are trained to use our unique method of instruction.

On completion they will be given access to the most comprehensive instructor resource materials and an e-learning course to undertake at will for purposes of personal development / self-assessment.

Online People Moving People Course Introduction:

Our unique online ‘People Moving People 2022’ ensures that your staff learn the up-to-date theory of moving and handling principles developed in line with best practice as of 2023. It is the most comprehensive course of its type and has been widely praised by the special education sector as being specific to them and the daily challenges they face within their roles.

The online course content meets the theoretical requirements of all Skills for Health and all Wales, and Scotland Manual Handling passport schemes.

The aim of this course is to equip the participants with all the theoretical knowledge in preparation of learning the practical element of moving and handling training. The course allows your staff to learn at a time, place, and pace to suit them, but also fitting with the school’s completion timeframes. It is a more cost-effective way to implement theory training compared to traditional internal sessions provided by a qualified internal staff member or by delivering classroom based, tutor led training conducted by an outsourced provider. The course has proven to replace half a day’s face to face training – we understand the impact this has on the school when staff are taken from their duties to participate in training sessions, this was a huge factor we focused on when developing this course, our aim was to decrease the level of downtime associated with deploying staff to conduct this required training.
